Power of Truth* Volume 8

Be watching the Cosmotheist Books online bookstore over the next few days for the eighth CD in our Power of Truth series of the best radio broadcasts and speeches of our founder, Dr. William Pierce. This new Power of Truth CD, like the others, will be an mp3-CD and hence will have a full 20 speeches of Dr. Pierce on it, around ten hours of audio, far more than any ordinary CD and one of the best bargains out there. Unlike the the other CDs that preceded it, though, this one will feature several speeches that are virtually unavailable anywhere else in digital form, speeches that we have newly digitized from the original master tapes — speeches that almost no one has heard for over a decade and a half. You might call them Dr. Pierce's "basement tapes," and we are sure that you will enjoy hearing them — and enjoy using them as recruiting materials to bring other worthy people into our National Alliance community.

In addition to having these rare speeches, you will also find that this new CD has dramatically better audio quality, since the master analogue magnetic tape recordings are now being used as our sources.

To check availability, access cosmotheistchurch.org/shop/ and click on the link for CDs.

New: Turner Diaries Third Edition

The long awaited new and improved edition of Dr. Pierce's first classic novel — "the most dangerous book in America," as it was once described by the FBI — was shipped to the National Office in mid-May. Revisions include the new cover (pictured), with Cosmotheist Books now listed as publisher; a new ISBN; updated postal and Web addresses; additional pages in the back of the book, listing other items available from our book store; an Afterword by the author, in his own words, describing the history of, and the ideas behind, The Turner Diaries; and a brief biography of the author. Cosmotheist Books stock was down to less than one half of the last case of the second edition of this best seller when the new edition arrived. This new edition should be available for purchase from the Cosmotheist Books Web site by the time you read this.

Cosmotheist Books

It was announced in the April BULLETIN that the novel Serpent's Walk, published and sold by Cosmotheist Books, had been banned on Amazon.com. Now we've learned that Dr. Pierce's most excellent second novel, Hunter, arguably much better than his first though it has not achieved anywhere near the notoriety of The Turner Diaries, has also been banned on Amazon.

In Robert Griffin's excellent 2001 book, The Fame of a Dead Man's Deeds, the only authorized biography of William Pierce, our founder is quoted as saying, "Hunter is not a book that the bookstores are going to carry, but I did notice that you can get it through Amazon.com." So much for that today, as the world's largest bookseller by far, Amazon, has put Political Correctness and allegiance to Jewry ahead of profits, and joined the other "thought police" to censor books that organized Jewry doesn't want us to read. Dr. Pierce also said, "When I wrote what became The Turner Diaries, in my mind I wasn't writing a book. It was a series of installments of a story I was writing for the tabloid I was publishing at the time, Attack!. It was just an experiment... Frankly, if I had realized that it was going to be a book I would have been a lot more careful in my writing."

How was he to know back then that his self-published, underground classic "experiment," not reviewed in the controlled media, and almost never carried by bookstores, would eventually sell hundreds of thousands of copies and be passed around and read by well more than a million people? "From the beginning with Hunter," Dr. Pierce says in Fame, "I had this idea in mind of how fiction can work as a teaching tool, and I saw it as a book from the beginning. I wrote the first chapter in 1984, and then for a long time I didn't have time to work on it. I finished the whole thing up in one year, 1989. I do think I was a much better writer of fiction with this book compared to The Turner Diaries. I see it as ironic that The Turner Diaries has had such a big impact and, at least so far, Hunter hasn't. But I think that is not related to the quality of the two books. It has been due to circumstances beyond my control. If somebody imitates [Hunter protagonist and title character] Oscar Yeager and it is found out that that is what he did, then maybe Hunter would take off like a skyrocket."

PayPal confiscated our accounts

this month and will hold the funds, more than $1,000, for 180 days. Those thieving Jews will no doubt have our money in an interest-bearing account for those six months... because they can. However, Cosmotheist Books customers were once again able to use their credit cards through most of May to purchase our material due to some slick circumventing of the de-platformers who have been denying credit card usage to us for most of the 21 months since the day after the disastrous "Unite The Right" rally in Charlottesville, Virginia — a rally with which the Alliance had nothing whatsoever to do. Every Alliance member should purchase and read both The Turner Diaries and Hunter, if he has not already, as well as The Fame of a Dead Man's Deeds, to gain insight into the mind of the founder of both the National Alliance and of Cosmotheism.

New titles added to our online bookstore this month are March Of The Titans: A History of the White Race by Arthur Kemp; The Poetic Edda by Lee M.Hollander; Arnold S. Leese's My Irrelevant Defense: Meditations Inside Gaol and Out on Jewish Ritual Murder; also The Iron Curtain Over America by John Beaty; Far and Wide by Douglas Reed; Hans Schmidt's End Times/End Games: The Final Months of the Jewish Century; plus Celsus On the True Doctrine: A Discourse Against the Christians, translated by R. Joseph Hoffmann; and another children's classic, Tarzan of the Apes by Edgar Rice Burroughs. The popular National Alliance business cards and our beautiful color magazine-size booklet Building a New White World have also been added back to our bookstore. These titles along with the Power of Truth 8 bring the total items available now at our store to 105. National Alliance business cards with our new address on them will be available in June as we've nearly exhausted inventory of cards with the old address.

Correspondence

Hello National Alliance! We're groovin' on our new poster! This 8.5x11-inch version makes an excellent stocking-stuffer! I'm sending a few to some strategic locations. Well Done. — W.P., Pennsylvania

Chairman Williams responds: W.P., That 8.5x11-inch color poster is going to be very popular. We're enclosing a sample with this issue of the BULLETIN of another version with the same message that is half that size; two can be printed on a letter-size sheet of light card stock, using the file just posted at natall.com/fliers/, then cut in half. Also enclosed is a smaller 2x4-inch sample sticker that can be printed, eight to a page, and applied to surfaces where they will draw the attention of our people to our Web site. So many more Whites today have had a bellyful of what's regularly referred to as the "crisis on the border" — the unchecked invasion of non-Whites into our living space, that now they will likely be responsive to our radical, common sense message. We are not going to stock these stickers for now, maybe later, but instructions for activists to order these themselves are at Avery.com: Just go to Products, then Labels, then Custom Printed Labels. Download the image for our 10x5-foot banner from natall.com/fliers ahead of time — it works just as well for a 2x4-inch sticker — and save it to your hard drive. You'll be prompted by the Avery site to upload it when you order the stickers. You'll be given an option to order as many sheets of eight-up 2x4-inch stickers as you want and Avery will then mail them to you.

Dear Lana [Williams]: Thank you so very, very much for your reply. Will doesn't have to respond to me. I know he is always very busy. Sorry for the very long email — always the sign of a crazy person, really. But not so here. Just too much time without anybody to talk with about the concerns the Alliance addresses so well and about ideas building up for a long time. I do talk to my own husband, of course. He is sympathetic, but much more cautious than I. Lana, I've seen a picture of you online and you are quite beautiful – I know it sounds shallow but good-looking people in leadership positions can only help. And your husband says you are so devoted and effective in supporting him. Two envelopes heading your way. One has two hundred dollars in it, and the other has my application for membership. — C.J., California

Chairman Williams responds: Thank you for joining our Alliance, C.J., and Lana thanks you for the compliment. You are probably right that our people are attracted to good-looking Whites in leadership positions. That's how attraction works, especially in our case with naturally attractive White females like Lana, and Vanessa Strom. I sure can't attract new members with my war-worned physiognomy, so mostly count on folks being attracted to the brutally honest teachings of Dr. Pierce just as I and other members have been. We all need to introduce millions of other kinsmen, especially our attractive females, to his teachings, and fast.

Dear Chairman Williams: I'm sorry I missed your call. Thank you for taking such a personal interest in the members of the National Alliance. I look forward to communicating with you soon. I'm happy to support our organization that has such a clear mission and seems to be well run. I will do my part to help the Alliance grow to the best of my abilities. I am particularly impressed with the book store. A check is enclosed for my monthly dues and another for 100 business cards and the following books: In Search of Ancient Israel, The Founding Myths of Modern Israel, and The Lightning and the Sun. You offer important materials that others will not carry. It's a shame that many other booksellers are so afraid that they will censor ideas. I also love the radio network. It is on in my house almost every day, is family friendly and loaded with great information — a wonderful tool. Please pass on my congratulations to Kevin and Vanessa. It sounds like they had a beautiful ceremony. — G.B., Wisconsin

Hello Chairman Williams: I understand the current policy on the [Membership] Handbook. Thanks for clarifying that. It sure is a shame to see how far my town and state have fallen. It also serves as a daily reminder what will happen to our race if we don't act soon, being corralled into small pockets of civilization while the horde of darkness encroaches on us. Any racial awareness that comes from the proximity to other races is, for the most part, sadly dulled by Christianity though. The Alliance is truly a beacon of light in the darkness and I hope that we can reach more White youths like that young shooter in [San Diego] California before they throw their lives away in desperation. As Dr. Pierce said, those of us who are conscious of what's really going on and are willing to do something about it are a minority of a minority. The lemmings will meekly give up their guns and go back to watching their sports and drinking beer, deathly afraid of being uncomfortable. All we can do is continue supporting the National Office in your efforts and disseminate the Alliance's message in any way we can.

After reading the April BULLETIN, I have done some research into the Satanic Temple's tax exempt status, and I have found its official statement. It appears that organizations related to the Temple have been granted tax-exemption in the past, such as the Reason Alliance (RA), which seems to fund most of the Temple's legal endeavors. The Reason Alliance was started by the same founders as the Temple and the "After School Satan" program. The RA received its 501(c)(3) tax-exempt status by meeting the requirements under U.S. Code § 509; here is a link to the official document... This is all that I have found at the moment, but I will continue to search and will notify you if any more relevant information is found. Regards, — A.R., Louisiana

Chairman Williams responds: Thank you so much for taking the initiative to look into that for us, A.R. Another Alliance member has taken the information you sent to me and followed up on it and we've got the application in hand now to start the process of getting tax exemption for the Cosmotheist Church. He will help us stay on top of the process and see it through to the end. The State, i.e., the Internal Revenue Service, should not be in the business of deciding which religions are in agreement with government policy and which are not. Cosmotheism actually enjoyed tax exemption as a religion for a while back in the 1980s, but it was revoked due to Jewish intervention and pressure applied to the unelected IRS bureaucrats. But the climate is different today. If bizarre and possibly insincere Satanists, with their After School Satan program and their Satanic Temple, can now receive tax exemption, surely the sincere, virtuous, and serious Cosmotheist Church can also.

Commentary by Chairman William White Williams

Memorial Day

Many members know that I served in Vietnam in the 1960s. I don't talk much about that long ago, far-flung military adventure. I'd joined the Army while still in high school so was just a dumb kid, with little purpose, on a path to a foolish escapade. Memories of my tours over there are mostly forgettable, not worthy of reflection. But as I write commentary for this month's BULLETIN on 27 May, it just happens to be Memorial Day. I put up a reminiscence today at our White Biocentrism forum under the topic "Taking Memorial Day Seriously." For those who are not online, and for its human interest value, I'll repeat that here:

> I don't take Memorial Day seriously. Never have, except for on Confederate Memorial Day in days past.
> But this year, this Memorial Day, I can't help but recall and share a glimpse of my own military service because it was 50 years ago today, 27 May, 1969, around dusk, that I had what arguably could be described as the most terrifying experience of my life.
> A teammate of mine back then published a book this year, titled The Youngest Green Beret. [see the excerpt on the next page of this BULLETIN — Ed.] He sent me a copy back in February when it was first released and the page below recounts why it was a day I'll never forget. Video, here: https://nationalvanguard.org/2016/08/will-williams-in-vietnam/

Enough about that personal coincidence. Fellow Alliance members, we are in a war today for the very survival of our race. It is not a shooting war like I participated in over in Southeast Asia 50 years ago — not yet — but it may well come to that before we know it. Be prepared. We can't count on the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution that our Founding Fathers drew up to secure free speech, religious liberty, and freedom of association for their posterity — us Whites — for much longer, the way things are unfolding in our once racially homogeneous nation. Nor can we count on our Second Amendment rights to bear arms to protect the citizenry from

A close call for one of our patrols occurs when Lt. Williams and Staff Sgt. Midlil are ambushed while patrolling in the "Finger." Midlil is wounded and Williams is missing in action. I'm at the team house with Mike when it goes down. Kittredge takes a CIDG crew with him to the scene while we monitor. He arrives to find several of our men dead. "I've got a pile of bodies here," he reports. Survivors claim that the VC walked through the ambush site while calling out the names of our troops. This is message strategy – "we know who you are, we're going to kill you, and your family."

Kittredge astutely organizes chaotic troops into a defensive position. He further orders Midlil back to camp and the chopper drops him off. Midlil was hit in the leg but he's walking around like it's a bee sting. Kittredge stays on site to manage the situation and rescue Willie. He is joined by a reaction force from B-41 led by Lt. William Aldridge.[45] Around midnight, Kittredge reports that Lt. Williams has recovered to his location and that Willie is safe after hours of evading the Viet Cong. It's an exceedingly tyrannical, anti-White government.

Our Alliance is hated enough by the powers that be. Our Church may not be IRS-approved; will it also not be BATF-approved? We'll see. Homeland Security forced me to relinquish my concealed carry handgun permit this month under pretext of the recent battery conviction in West Virginia, though the alleged battery in 2015 against a coup-plotter (first offense, no criminal record) was not domestic as the statute requires. My case has no final disposition since I've appealed the misdemeanor to the state Supreme Court. I was threatened with a year in jail if I didn't comply with Homeland Security's demand. It is a dangerous world and I should be entitled to protect myself and others when out in it.

When I say National Alliance members should be prepared for hostilities, it is understood that first they should be discreetly networking with others in their area who are racial loyalists of similar mind-set. Beyond that, every member should have the means for protecting himself and his family from hostile elements or for taking part in a militia in the event of civil disorder. At minimum these means should consist of a riot gun or the equivalent 12-gauge shotgun with either a pump or semi-automatic action and a capacity of at least six shells, and barrel no longer than 20 inches; a semiautomatic rifle in a military caliber with a detachable, large-capacity (at least 20 cartridges) magazine, and an effective handgun. The reason for having a handgun in addition to a shotgun and/or a rifle is portability. During a period of civil disorder it may be prudent to have a firearm instantly available at all times. Choose calibers for which ammunition is available and store at least 500 cartridges for each weapon, using the oldest ammo first for shooting practice, then replace. These are the same recommendations Dr. Pierce gave to us about minimum firearm ownership when he was alive and they are as sensible today as then.

Too Involved?

A relatively new, but already very dedicated National Alliance member asks for advice about his dilemma:

I had a conversation with a friend of mine who is also a White nationalist. The main point of the conversation was that I am too radical and dedicated to the cause. He basically told me that the reason that some of my friends avoid inviting me to events is because I have no interests other than the movement. I don't go anywhere without fliers or pamphlets. I am always on the lookout for someone I can talk to about the Alliance and getting involved. He told me that I need to tone myself down and quit viewing everything in light of my political views. Is it possible to be too involved? This is in part because I won't go to the movies or concerts with [him and his wife]. They were trying to fix me up with a female friend who doesn't share our views. His wife asked me at a BBQ why I would not go on these blind dates. Needless to say she didn't like my answer. I don't enjoy Jew movies and can't stand pop music, even what they refer to as "country." So basically [they say] I am being unreasonable because I don't corrupt my mind and want only a relationship with someone who shares my views. What gets me is my friends are supposed to be following the same beliefs I have. They want to talk but only when no one else is around. Then they have these parties where they play the most god-awful music and associate with people to whom I wouldn't give the time of day. They say it is best to stay under the radar, but I just think they are wishy-washy and don't want to draw attention to themselves. I don't want a big circle of friends, just a few dedicated Whites. I would like everyone's opinion on this please. — C.H., Texas, on whitebiocentrism.com

C.H. has a problem I've seen many times before and have had myself, especially when I first got involved in serious racial politics: isolation, not having other people willing to share vital, newfound knowledge I knew to be true. I could convince some people to believe me, and acknowledge that we've been lied to all of our lives about matters of utmost importance, but to get them to actually join with me and act on that knowledge was a different story. C.H. is correct that his friends are wishy-washy. Dr. Pierce described them as lemmings, as conformists who will "stay under the radar," "leave well enough alone" so as not to "rock the boat." "Look out for Number One, C.H.," they'll say. "Be respectable." I had a close friend years ago, an Alliance member in fact, who told me, "Will, your problem is you're too hung up on White nationalist orthodoxy." I took that as a compliment. I was deeply moved by Dr. Pierce's teachings, took them to heart and worked every day to spread the wisdom of his Cosmotheist world view and implement the program of the National Alliance. I continued to do that even through the dozen or so grim years of the Alliance's decline after our founder's death. My friend fell by the wayside. Maybe he'll come back on board with us when he sees the National Alliance is realizing success without ever compromising on Cosmotheist fundamentals. Maybe not. I don't care; he was simply another casualty of the war we were in then and are still in now. Others like C.H. in Texas who are uncompromising, who don't like Jew movies or god-awful pop music, or trendy party girls who do, are joining our Alliance. C.J. in California, G.B. in Wisconsin, A.R. in Louisiana, and other fresh troops have also joined. They may be isolated themselves, but not for long as others in their areas join with us.

C.H. should perhaps be more selective about those he tries to recruit, and not waste his breath or his Alliance material on "low percentage shots." He'll find new like-minded friends and he'll eventually find the exceptional lady who sees him as a strong, principled teller of truths, a much stronger man than the Politically Correct herd animals who "go along to get along." I'm no longer isolated with my strong racial beliefs, and am in a much better position than C.H. here in the National Office where I can interact almost exclusively with those who are already attracted to the Alliance, every day if I wish. But I still carefully "talk it up" about taboo subjects of religion and racial politics among our less aware kinsmen every chance I get. I enjoyed doing that for two months of recent court-ordered anger management classes. My all-White captive audience got an earful each session of everything that angers me, and of how I channel that anger into productive work for our Alliance. There are ways to detect when someone is receptive to discussion of White racial loyalty. The confidence to discuss race from our perspective comes with experience. It takes years of study, and in my case, having the good fortune of being around teachers like Dr. Pierce. In a way, I was learning from his teachers, too, and from others in his circle of influence like Kevin Strom, and Kevin's teachers, and his teachers' teachers. We students eventually become the teachers ourselves. W. W. W.
